Résumé

Are you passionate about making a difference in the healthcare industry? Are you ready to contribute to the design, implementation, and execution of groundbreaking medical affairs plans? Look no further! Novartis is seeking a dynamic and knowledgeable Medical Lead to join our team. As a Medical Lead you will play a crucial role in supporting the overall product strategy, ensuring the success of our therapy area. Your responsibilities will include providing scientific information, assisting in clinical study design and organization, and fostering educational dialogue with key opinion leaders and regulatory stakeholders. You will be the driving force behind the development and execution of our medical affairs initiatives.

About the Role

- Responding to medical inquiries with high-quality and timely information, establishing standard response documents for frequently asked questions.
- Providing valuable medical and scientific input into the development and execution of clinical trials and research activities within the therapeutic area.
- Supporting the country strategy for Non-Interventional Studies (NIS) and Investigator Initiated Trials (IIT).
- Coordinating the review and approval of medical materials, ensuring they align with local guidelines and are tailored to meet local needs.
- Delivering essential medical insights to cross-functional teams, including Pharmacovigilance, Regulatory Affairs, Market Access, and Commercial teams.
- Taking charge of risk identification, assessment, mitigation planning, and implementing and monitoring internal controls.

Minimum Requirements:

- MD qualifications or PhD will be highly regarded.
- Minimum 2+ years of Medical Affairs experience
- Excellent stakeholder management skills both internally within the business and externally along with outstanding presentation skills
- Excellent planning and organization skills with a positive, self-motivated approach
- High proficiency in problem solving and strong scientific analytical skills.

- Ability to maintain the highest degree of integrity, represent the company's high ethics, moral behavior, and professionalism.

By joining Novartis as a Medical Lead, you will be at the forefront of innovation and transformation in the pharmaceutical industry. Your contributions will shape the future of healthcare, making a profound impact on patient care.

Are you ready to make a difference? Join Novartis Pharma today and embark on an inspiring journey towards a brighter future for global healthcare. Together, we can redefine what's possible!
